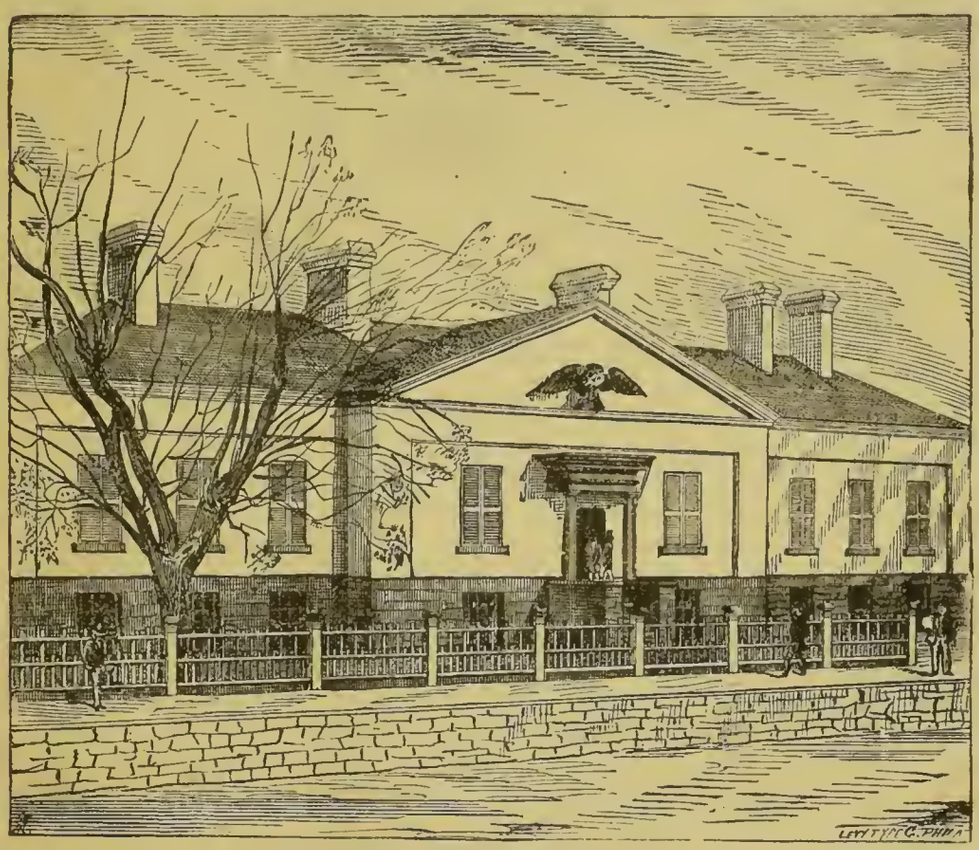
AN ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF THE MINTS OF THE UNITED STATES AND EUROPE.

BY E. LOCKE MASON.

PART I — THE UNITED STATES MINTS. — CONTINUED.

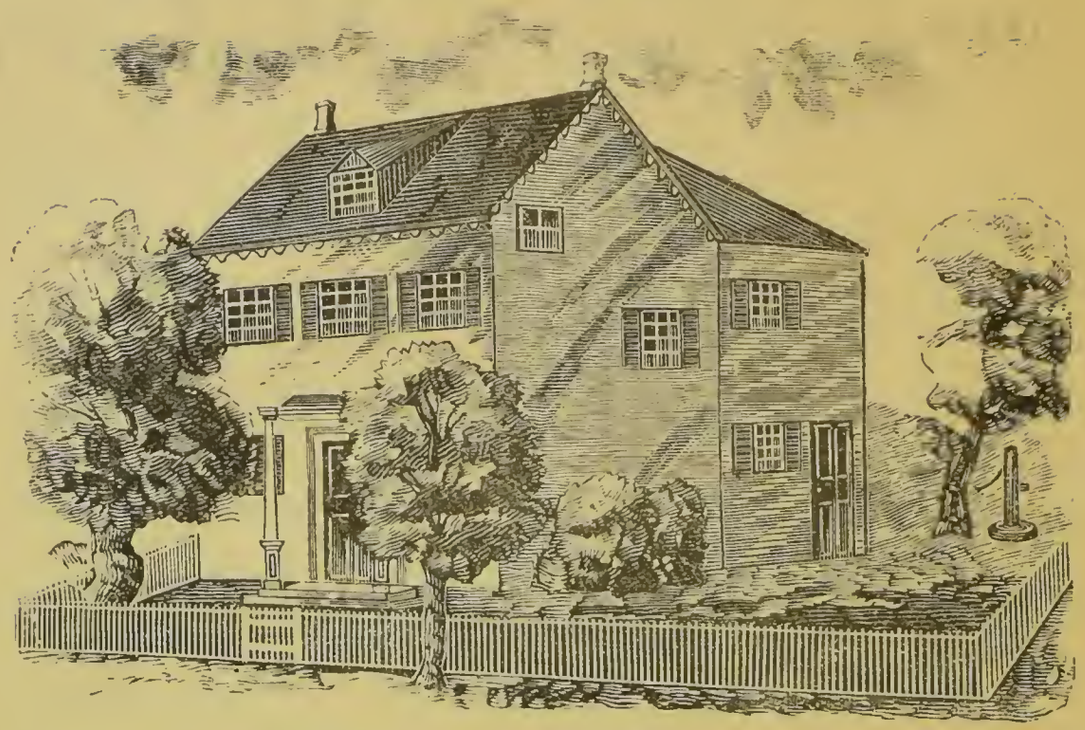
THE CHARLOTTE, N.C., MINT.



[We gave a description of this mint in the last issue, and now add the illustration. — ED.]

DR. EDWARDS, the former superintendent of the Charlotte Mint, exhibited to us in 1859 a handsome numismatic cabinet, arranged around the reception room of the mint; and this collection attracted many visitors. We do not know what became of this cabinet of coins after the government changed it from a mint to an assay office.

THE GEORGIA MINT.



In 1835, Congress provided a branch mint in Dahlonega, Lumpkin County, Ga., for the coinage of gold only. The proximity of the Georgia gold-mines to Dahlonega, and the quantity of ore resulting from the working of the same, necessitated the location and erection of this building. In 1862 this mint was closed, in consequence of the breaking out of the civil war.

A NUMISMATIC TRIP TO EUROPE.

BY E. LOCKE MASON.

[Commenced in the June number.]

The day was passed in monotonous gloom. The conversation among the passengers was chiefly in reference to the sad morning obsequies to our deceased fellow-passenger. All coin-chat was ignored for the day, and we were all looking for something that would indicate land. A happy omen this afternoon was the appearance of three small white doves alighting upon the rigging, apparently exhausted with a long and wearisome flight in search of a resting-place. The passengers were anxious to secure these feathered trophies of an ocean-voyage, but the officers protected them. After remaining a few minutes, the birds flew off into space. At seven P.M. another dove, larger in size than the preceding, landed on the vessel, and was caught by a steerage-passenger, who was compelled by the angry sailors to release it, or, as they asserted, there would be no more good luck in that ship.

May 9. Up at five A.M.; and we were delighted to see a speck of land in the distance, which increased in size, as we proceeded, until a series of hills appeared at the north of us. Soon the Irish coast loomed up, then Cape Clear lighthouse. A number of vessels appeared, and passed to the west of us; the sea became calm, and the bright, golden sun shone out in glorious splendor, — "all on account of the visit of the doves," as the superstitious seamen averred. A rock projecting from the sea, having a lighthouse looming up to view, attracted our attention, and by inquiry we learned that this is the famous "Fasnet Light." Next the green-capped land of the Irish coast appeared in a continuous line, revealing animal life and an old castle in ruins. Soon we passed the three prominent projecting rocks in the sea, which are not inaptly termed "The Bull," "The Cow," and "The Calf." The purser announced a mail-bag ready for Queenstown, Ireland, where we should make our first anchorage, and all the passengers hurriedly rushed into the cabin for stationery, while the purser supplied the English stamps necessary for mailing correspondence. Soon the deck was covered with anxious letter-writers, and in a half-hour's time the pouch in the companion-way was plethoric with mail-matter for the United States viâ the first homeward-bound steamer. We observed on the land many pretty patches of green sward, upon which cows, sheep, and occasionally women and children were observed. "Roache's Point," at the month of the cove of Cork, upon which was a large, snowy white lighthouse, arose before us like a spectre. At this point we took an English pilot aboard, to guide us safely to Liverpool. No fences were observed on the land; but hedges of hawthorn, or other foliage, made up the division-lines of property, etc. We passed close to a lighthouse called "Ballycotton," standing on a rocky eminence entirely surrounded by water. Several newsmen, orange and gooseberry lassies, came on board from Queenstown, and plied their avocations, to their intense delight and profit. Here we heard the first news and read the first newspaper since leaving New York. Bought the "Cork Advertiser," an uninteresting daily paper, containing about half a dozen columns of reading-matter, among which were half a dozen lines appertaining to the United States; and we paid sixpence (twelve cents) for such an unsatisfactory literary lunch.

We are now steaming along close to the Irish coast, which consists of an abrupt, continuous rocky elevation, lashed in great fury by the huge waves of the sea. We observed here and there a house, a church, and a few cultivated patches of land, exhibiting an early growth of wheat, potatoes, and turnips. We also passed Waterford, Ireland, and there observed a beautiful sunset, too soon lost behind the last hills of "old Ireland." Next came to our sight the coast of Wales; and, darkness coming on, we retired for the night.

May 10. At early dawn we passed Holyhead, and thence along the coast of Wales, passing quite a number of small steamers, and a number of sailing-craft termed "luggers," and dropped anchor off "the Bar," ten miles from the city of Liverpool, which was enveloped in an impenetrable black smoke, much like our own Pittsburg in America. We soon learned that the steamer "Batavia," which was to beat us in the ocean race, had not yet arrived.

RANDOM OBSERVATIONS.

No. VIII.

BY T. W. T.

[Written for Mason's Illustrated Coin Collectors' Magazine.]

The phases of a collector's experiences do not, in these brief papers, appear to be delineated further than in shadowy outline. We have simply transcribed one feature of one variety; their ramifications are almost infinite in degree as well as variety. Technically, in collecting, there are so many elements which enter the problem that the conditions seem to warrant no definite or satisfactory results. Still, the only way to reach a conclusion is to push inquiry and investigation, and note observations in their most minute details, but bidding adieu to all expectations of exhausting the subject even in one of its most simple windings. But who that has been a lover of chronology and history so thoroughly and unmistakable transmitted upon imperishable metallic parchment, can help feeling a perennial interest in the smallest matters that can aid to a better and more intimate knowledge of the affairs of the human race, even in a solitary particular? Devotees, within any department of science, are ready to admit that the wayfaring reader has no competent basis of judgment whereby to compare a tame, ordinary interest with the lively and susceptible thrill of the enthusiast; though why one should be an enthusiast and the other antithetically destitute of appreciating any thing but the corporeal, is a matter to be more completely examined by the mental philosopher than by the absorbed observer of facts merely for fact's or fancy's sake. Our ways are wonderfully different, — some divergent like the numismatist, some convergent like the philosopher. All find room and delight in their respective spheres of operation without intrusion, or severe judgment even.

OUR HOBBIES.

UNIQUE C. S. A. PIECE.

We have received from Tennessee a small medalet, charm, or, as the owner claims, a silver half dime of the Confederate States. Obverse. Confederate flag, in centre; around the top the legend, "A United South;" date in exergue, 1861. Reverse, a sprig of cotton in bloom, surrounded by thirteen stars. We should say that the piece is a charm, as it is piereed, and has a small ring attached. There is no authenticated coinage of the Confederacy, except a silver half dollar of 1861.

CURRENT THOUGHTS ON COINS AND COINAGE.

BY ROBERT MORRIS, LL.D., OF LA GRANGE, KY.

PART SEVEN.

The images (simulacra) of the heathen deities are pointed out upon coins by certain indisputable marks.

Without a general knowledge of heathen mythology, the writings of the Greek and Roman poets, and the history of the most interesting period of the world, are obscure. However we may charge upon those elegant people a superstitious folly through gross ignorance of the true and only God, yet it was in this form that their intensely religious character manifested itself; and, if we would understand their aspirations of future life, the nature of their oaths, and the sanctity of their treaties and public covenants generally, we must look into their mythology, and know something of the name, the power, and the worship of their gods. The Pantheon, or building at Rome erected in honor of all the gods, was constructed probably by Augustus, 27 B.C., possibly by his son-in-law Agrippa. It is yet standing, in good preservation, as the S. Maria della Rotonda, so called by Pope Boniface III., A.D. 607.

It is round, and has numerous niches in the wall, where the images of deities were set up.

There is a practical pantheon, or collection of Roman deities, available to every American scholar, and that is the representations of those fabulous beings upon ancient coins. These have the prime advantage of being the workmanship of artists who believed intensely and thoroughly in the beings they thus personified.

The next paper will embrace the female deities.

CALIFORNIA GOLD COINAGES.

The $50 "Slugs."

In 1850, by Act of Congress, the United-States Assay Office was established in San Francisco, Cal.; and the octagonal pieces represented by the above illustrations were coined, and became a circulating medium, in lieu of gold-dust and nuggets, as in 1849. There are several varieties of these pieces, but only two prominent types. The fictitious value of the octagonal "slugs" range in value from $55 to $75, according to condition. The round "slugs" are worth from $75 to $100.

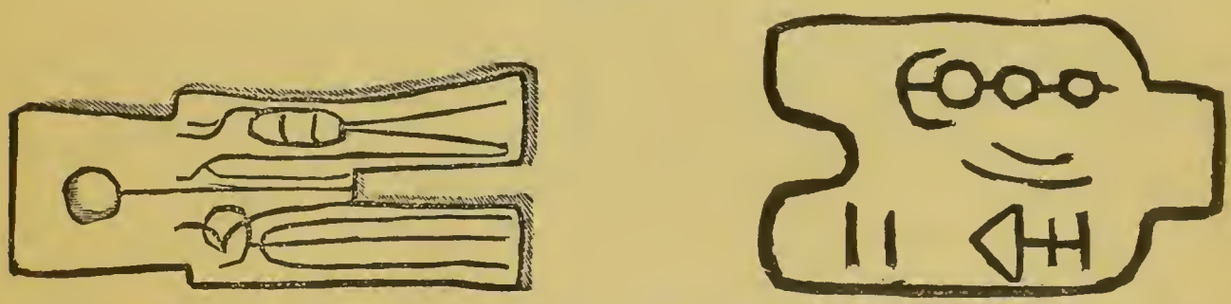
ANCIENT CHINESE COINAGES.

NO. II.



The Oldest known Chinese Coin, "Ho," or "Merchandise Money," 2853 B.C.

The accompanying illustration exhibits the oldest coin known to China and in existence. It is of the Yii dynasty. The inscription reads from the right upwards, and signifies "Current merchandise of the second metal (silver) circulating in the peaceful capital."

The Pu Coin, 2085 B.C.

This coin was of iron, and also of copper. The design on the right is "Ho," or merchandise; on the left "Pu." which signifies cloth.

CORRESPONDENCE.

WHEATON, ILL., Jan. 8, 1885.

Dear Sir, — January and December numbers of COIN COLLECTORS' MAGAZINE at hand. I call it the best coin journal on my table. It somehow has a healthy financial look about it. I find I am short the October and November numbers. Please send, and oblige.

Fraternally yours,

THEO. H. WISE,
Editor "Mineralogist & Antiquarian."

[Thanks for good opinion, and hope to deserve it by continued efforts to produce a readable and instructive numismatic publication. — ED.]

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 27, 1884.

Dear Sirs, — Send me your COIN COLLECTORS' MAGAZINE. I enclose you a two-dollar note for the same. I take quite an interest in coins and relics of all kinds. I have, I expect, the only lottery-ticket issued under the authority of the "Old Continental Congress;" and, in the matter of coins, I have a most beautiful twenty-five cent piece of 1805, with 6 over 5; a splendid half-cent of 1793; cents of 1795, 1798 (a beauty), 1800 (cannot be beat), 1801–1804, 1807, and consecutively to 1857. They are just fine, and no mistake.

Hoping you are in health, and having the success your energy and skill deserve, I am, with a happy New Year,

Yours sincerely, M. V. B. B.

[We feel greatly pleased in having the good-will and encomiums of our patrons, and particularly so when we hear from old subscribers like yourself, — the "stand-bys" that fill us with numismatic inspiration and a determination to succeed in our humble efforts to advance our favorite science. — ED.]

AN ABOLITION MEDALET.

A SUBSCRIBER sends us, for publication and sale, a copper token, or medalet, in very fine condition. Obverse, bust of Liberty; legend around the top, "Liberty and No Slavery." Date, 1863. Reverse side inscused, bearing same emblems. Size of a bronze cent. Price $1.00.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

WE are indebted to Messrs. Bradley & Co., the eminent book publishers, 66 North Fourth Street, Philadelphia, for their kindness in allowing us to have copies made of some of the important illustrations in their large and excellent numismatic work entitled "Dye's Encyclopædia of the Coins of the World." These cuts will appear, from time to time, in this MAGAZINE, and were commenced in the last issue with the United-States mints, and the rare Chinese razor-shaped coin.

"1839 OVER 1836" CENT.

THE "Erratic 1839 cent," or, as all coin dealers (except Mason & Co.) term it, the "1839 over 1836," is the first of the 1839 varieties, there being five varieties of the cents of this date; viz., the "Erratic '39," the "'39 with the '38 Head," the "Silly Head," the "Booby Head," and the "'39 with the '40 Head." It is evident that the engraver's tool "slipped up" when he was engraving the "9," and connected the tail of the "9" to the top circle of same, thus causing what appears to be either 1839 over 1830, or 1836, but which is in reality an engraver's error.

OUR BARCAIN DEPARTMENT.

The above heading will be kept standing to represent special bargains picked up in our trips through the country and at our office. Every piece or article is on hand at price named, which is below all dealers' prices, and warranted as represented, or money refunded. Corrected monthly.

HATCH'S POCKET COIN TEST.

A SAFE, CONVENIENT, AND INFALLIBLE DETECTOR OF COUNTERFEIT COIN.

ENGRAVING No. 1 represents the exact size and form; Nos. 2 and 3 show the Test open, and ready for use. It can be carried conveniently in the vest-pocket, and, with reasonable usage, will last a long time.

In using, the coin to be tested is first moistened; then the test, which is inserted like lead in a pencil, as shown in Fig. 3, is rubbed upon it. Its effect upon spurious coin is quick and effective, as is evidenced by the coin changing color instantly. It has no effect on gold or silver. It is widely reccommended by bank officials and bankers as the best and most convenient Test ever offered to the public.

TREASURY OF THE UNITED STATES, Aug. 14, 1881.

GENTLEMEN: Sir, — I have examined your Coin Test, and find that, for detecting spurious coin, it is equal to liquid acid; and that for convenience in carrying, and the ease and quickness with which it can be used, it is superior to any test that has been tried in this office. Very respectfully, JAS. GILFILLAN, United-States Treasurer.

DIRECTIONS FOR USING.

Moisten the coin, then apply the test. Spurious coin changes color instantly, but it has no effect on good coin.

Sample by mail, post-paid, 25 cents; 1 dozen, post-paid, $2.00; 6 dozen, by express, $9.00; 12 dozen, by express, $16.00.
